(Text) Mexico City--Cuban Ambassador to Mexico Carlos Lechuga said on 24 July that a new invasion against Cuba is being prepared by mercenaries trained in Guatemala and Nicaragua with U.S. financing. At a press conference, Lechuga attacked "dictatorships disguised as representative democracies," including among them Colombia and Guatemala, where an invasion against Cuba is being prepared; Argentina, where clean elections were trampled upon by the army; Nicaragua, "where the Somozas are murders and thieves;" and Peru.

The ambassador said that the Fidel Castro government is ready to negotiate with the United States on a basis of equality, but that the North Americans have refused to do so. He also asserted that the Cuban revolution will not fail and that it is irreversible.
